

Ibanez

BLAZER

The old runner has come back climbing over the wall of time from early '80s...Ibanez Blazer was introduced to the market in 1982 and its sharp appearance and sound versatility matched well to the music scene in early '80s. Time has been always changing and music trend has been also changing always. Now time need "BLAZER" so we wish to recall "BLAZER" to the current music scene.
